

Scotiabank Completes its "Caring for Tomorrow" Pledge

Lindsay, May 27, 2010

The Ross Memorial Hospital Foundation is celebrating the outstanding commitment of Scotiabank in Lindsay. Today, Dennis Smith of Scotiabank presented the tenth annual ins tallment of the financial institution's pledge to the RMH expansion project. This contribution brings to a close the Scotiabank pledge of $50,000.

Erin Coons, Executive Director of the RMH Foundation, was pleased to accept the cheque for $5000. "Scotiabank continues to make a difference at the Ross," said Coons. "We're so pleased that they were able to give so generously to such a worthy project. It's been enjoyable for us to show their team how the hospital has grown over the years with the help of donations such as theirs. Without this kind of outstanding involvement from the community, the Ross wouldn't be the excellent facility it is today."

Since 1996, Scotiabank has donated a total of $80,460 to the Ross Memorial Hospital Foundation, supporting the purchase of medical equipment and capital projects. The Scotiabank team is recognized on the RMH donor wall with a "patron" plaque.